

National Honor Society helps Historical Society

Members of the Vienna High School Chapter of National Honor Society have been a great help to the Historical Society of Maries county during the past six months. The two organizations have helped each other as NHS members need community service hours, and as the Historical Society needs young helping hands.

The society solicited NHS for help in the spring of 2002, and advisor Mrs. Kinkead asked students to help. During the summer and fall, these students cleaned old buildings, moved museum displays, carted books, cataloged documents, put together photo albums, arranged display cases, mowed, staffed the museum complex on Sundays and recently helped get ready for and performed at the "History Comes Alive" event.

Without the help of the student volunteers, the society would not have been able to accomplish so much.

NHS President Amanda Stratman said the Vienna chapter of NHS requires 35 hours of community service. Some NHS members are working toward a national NHS community service goal, which is over 100 hours.

The Historical Society owes a special thanks to all the following students who helped the society in the past months:

Lacey Baxter, Kory Bingaman,
Lindsay Helton, Malinda
